

CANADIAN PRESS
IS VERY ANGRY

Says Result of Reported
Decision of the Treaty Board Is Due to Fear.

BLAMES OFFICIALS

The Claim Is Made That
Chamberlain Had Much
To Do With Giving Up.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 19.—The bitterness caused by the reported decision of the Alaskan boundary commission has not abated in Canada, but most of the feeling seems to be directed against England and not against the United States.

The sentiment in the dominion is that the United States is always ready to take advantage of every opportunity and that in this instance it was the duty of the imperial government to see that it did not secure too much.

There is still a lurking hope that the official declaration of the decision will show more to the interest of Canada.

In spite of this single hope, however, the press of the dominion appears to take it for granted that Canada has been sacrificed in order that the friendship of the United States might be retained.

Didn't Expect Much.
The Gazette says: "Canadians generally did not expect much from the arbitration committee. The commission was not an arbitration tribunal, such as could be expected to decide on the weight of evidence, no matter which side suffered. The three representatives of the United States were hardly open to conviction."

Under the heading "Canada Is Sacrificed" Le Journal says in part: "The result had been seen from the beginning. In accepting the decision of a commission named equally by the two parties to the case England plainly indicated a disposition to no longer sus-tain the contentions of Canada, but to sacrifice them in the hope of securing the disappearance of a cause of continual friction with the United States."

Shameful Capitulation.
Le Canada, which is the personal organ of the Canadian minister of marine and fisheries, says:

"Lord Alverstone, the representative of Great Britain, has ranged himself on the side of the Americans and decided favorably to the Americans all along the line save for one little concession, through the grace of which it is hoped to excuse this shameful capitulation."
"Through the treaty Mr. Chamberlain signed with Mr. Hay, Canada is compelled to accept the decision of the tribunal and to submit to the voice of the majority. In a word, Chamberlain has given it to us in the neck. He issued his instructions before he left the colonial office. He gave Lord Alverstone his lesson, and Canada was condemned before the case was heard."
Decision Is Final.

The Toronto Globe (government)
makes a point of the value to Canada of Pearce and Wales Islands, the latter practically commanding Port Simpson, the probable terminus of the new Canadian transcontinental railway, and says the decision giving these islands to Canada is of no great importance. The Globe continues:

"No doubt one of the British common deadlocks that would have ensued out deadlock that would have ensued had both sides refused to give way in regard to the ownership of the head of the Lynn canal. The finding is a compromise, in which neither side gets all it set out to secure. This decision is final, however, and there will be no harking back. Every foot of boundary line is now settled forever, with no possibility of further strife."

Fears American Claims.
After asserting that the terms of the arbitration were most unfair and that the United States showed slight confidence in the judicial soundness of its claims by refusing to accept a neutral arbitrator, the Toronto World (opposition) declares:

"Imperial statesmen, or rather English statesmen, for they do not appear to have grasped the meaning of imperialism, regard the friendship of the United States as a pearl beyond price, provided this country has to pay for it."

"These easy triumphs for American diplomacy in the settlement of boundary disputes are full of dangerous possibilities. There is a broad frontier between Canada and the United States. If raising a boundary claim is to make subsequent acknowledgment a mere matter of form, the Americans are likely to make our frontier bristle with boundary issues before Canada is much older."

GRIDIRON GOSSIP
FROM ALL OVER

Wisconsin a Loser in the Game—Pennsylvania Leads in the East.

With the practical defeat of Chicago by the plucky players from the classical suburb of Evanston, comes the first surprise to the dope diggers of 1903 football results. Then the Badgers so overwhelmingly snowed
the ministers from Beloit under the deepening drift that is a question as to which team in the west really shows championship form. Of course Michigan won its game with Indiana by a larger score than Chicago had been able to make and tallied fifty-one points and Minnesota had seventy-five points more than Iowa's zero, yet Wisconsin's wonderful reversal of form in their game with Beloit makes them more than a dark horse in the contest. Their true status will be found when they meet Chicago, October 31, on the same day that Michigan and Minnesota try conclusions. The two winners of these games will be then considered fit for the championship game which is sure to be a close one if none of the four leaders drop in the playing qualities before that time. Michigan, of course, looks best, but Wisconsin is delving away team work with staying qualities and individual playing that may bring them to the fore before the end of the season.

The East
Yale showed up strong in her game with Pennsylvania state college and scored 27 points. Harvard was barely able to hold West Point down to a score of five to nothing, and Princeton only made eleven points on the Carlisle Indians. Dartmouth scored 17 on Williams while Pennsylvania carried off the honors by beating Brown 30 to 0. This is one point more than Princeton made on this same college and from the dope makes Pennsylvania the stronger of the two teams.

GOOD ORDINANCE
FOR JANESVILLE

Anti-Spitting Crusade in Minneapopolis Might Well Be Enacted
for Janesville.

In Minneapolis there is an ordinance prohibiting spitting on the sidewalks, and signs are placed at all down town street corners, in the crowded parts of the city and in the street cars to warn citizens of the Twin cities against violating the law. While the benefit that was derived from such an ordinance, was not always apparent, the "Five dollar" sign warning helped to keep the condition of the streets in somewhat better shape. Such a sign might do some good in the vicinity of the post office, where the filthy condition of the side walk at times resembles a hog pen.

SECRETARY CARTER CALLS AN-

MAY BE RIGHT, HOWEVER,

It Would Be Simply Coincidence,
If the Commission Acts That Way, Though.

(Special By Scripps-McIntae.)
London, Oct. 19.—Secretary Carter
of the Alaskan boundary commission said this morning that the announcement that the newspapers published last Friday regarding the probable outcome of the conference were entirely premature and that if the commission should decide in that manner it would merely be a coincidence and not as they had determined upon previously. He stated that no settlement on the claims had as yet been settled upon and that the report that all points had been conceded to the United States except the Portland canal was incor-

DOWIE'S CRUSADE

Faithful Were Sleepy This Morning, and But Few Attended the Opening Meeting.

(Special By Scripps-McIntae.)
New York, Oct. 19.—When Dowie appeared in the Madison Square Garden this morning to begin the first service of the day only a few score of the faithful and a half dozen sleepy reporters were present. After a brief talk he ordered the host to go out on the streets and begin the door-to-door canvass of the city. So far Dowie has made a dismal failure here. Dowie rails bitterly at the press and the public and promises to say some interesting things about reporters at tonight's meeting. The local clergy express a feeling of disgust with his methods.

All Asked to Attend: Mrs. E. E.

(Special By Scripps-McIntae.)
Pittsburg, Oct. 19.—Eight men were killed and four injured by the falling of a derrick this morning on the new Wabash railroad bridge on Water street this city. The accident it is said was due to over weighting the traveling crane which projects beyond the bridge.
The heavy iron snapped and fell directly upon a large force of workmen who were beneath it. The traveller and portion of the bridge then fell upon a barge in the river and sank it. All the boats in the vicinity were hurried to the rescue and the eight bodies were recovered.
The injured were badly hurt and may all die. Many others were hurt but not seriously.

PETER'S PENCE IN CHICAGO CHURCHES

Vast Sum Was Secured in the Catholic Churches for That Object.

In the Catholic churches throughout the country a collection is being taken up which goes toward the support of the pope. In the different churches, the time of taking this collection is called "Peter's Pence Day." The amount which is being collected this year is the first since the election of the new pope, Pius X. "Peter's Pence" day was observed in Janesville earlier in the fall and between fifty and sixty dollars was secured. Yesterday the custom was observed in Chicago and $20,000 was taken in for the support of the church. The average in all the parishes in Chicago amounted to $100 apiece. A Chicago man estimated that the total will pouring into the papal exchequer from the entire country through the "Peter's Pence" collection will reach $1,000,000.

The pope has fixed Nov. 9 as the date for a secret consistory and a public consistory will be held Nov.
12.

ceived in dueling.

John Nelson, aged 13, of St. Paul, game of football Saturday. In struggling for the ball Nelson fell, and

SEEK CARTER'S
MONEY SUPPLY

The United States Government Will Sue a Former Army Officer for Funds.

HAVE HARD WORK

Must Furnish Proof That Securities Held Were Used To Pay Attorneys' Fees.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Chicago attorneys representing Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, the convicted army officer, have received information that the United States is prepared to prosecute its suit to secure possession of over $500,- 000 in securities, now held by Carter's receiver, and which, the government contents, were purchased with proceeds from the alleged Greene-Gaynor conspiracy to defraud the government.

The suit will be tried before Judge Kohlsaat of the Federal court in Chicago as soon as the attorneys can get the matter ready, not later than the first of next year. Involved directly in the Chicago suit is something over $100,000 in securities, which were found in this city, but through a contract between the contending parties
the disposition of the remaining securities include about $200,000, found in West Virginia, and an equal amount of bonds and realty found in New York.

Faces Difficult Task.
In order to prove its right to the possession of this money the government will be required to establish that the securities were bought with money secured out of the Greene-Gaynor government contracts, and, further, that this money was secured by someone in trust for Carter, who was the paymaster and inspector over the works at Savannah harbor and Cumberland sound, for which contracts were awarded in 1893.

It is admitted that this task will be difficult, but Attorney Martin Irwin of Atlanta, Ga., special assistant to the United States attorney general, has expressed hope that he will be able to make all necessary connections.

Involves Cash and Securities.

Involved in the amounts which the government is prepared to show Capt.
Carter received is $50,000 in cash
found in possession of Carter in 1893, as well as the securities which were turned over to Carter's attorneys by the prisoner's father-in-law, R. F.
Westcott, after Carter had been sent to prison in 1897. Carter was unable to show the government authorities from what source he received the $50,000, or to show a satisfactory reason why Westcott should have given him half a million in securities.

The government's theory is that the $50,000 was a payment by Greene and Gaynor, and that the $500,000 in securities were purchased by Westcott with money paid him by Greene and Gaynor on account of Carter.

Claim Money Is Gift.

Where the fight will come, it is said,
is on the question whether Westcott, now dead, secured the money through some business agreements he himself had with the indicted contractors or received it on account of Carter.

The defense probably will contend that to give his son-in-law $500,000 to assist in defending himself against the charges against him was not an unlike act on the part of Westcott.

It is understood also that if it were necessary for the defense to establish a positive case it might be shown that the $50,000 which Carter had in 1893
also was a gift from Westcott either to Carter or to Carter's wife.

"TENNESSEE'S PARDNER"
ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

J. P. Chamberlain, Made Famous by Brete Harte, Chooses Death Because Too Feeble to Work.

Chinese Camp, Cal., Oct. 19.—J. P.
Chamberlain, from whom one of the heroes of Brete Harte's famous "Tennessee's Pardner" was drawn, shot and killed himself at his home at Second Garrote in a fit of despondency. Since the death of his old comrade, James H. Chaffee, he had lived alone.

On account of Harte's story, Chamberlain's name, as well as his home, came into world-wide prominence. He left a note saying that he had lived to his eighty-first birthday, was getting too feeble for manual labor, and would choose death.

Chaffee, who was the "pardner" in the celebrated story, died in an Oakland sanitarium on July 31 last. He was eighty years old.

Return of the Lace Scarf

RIBBONS AND HATS

LACE, lace, in spite of the many abominable cheap imitations, the commonness of its use. But the lace we are to mention can by no means be purchased for a farthing, be worn by every one. We refer to the beautiful lace scarf, wide and long, very like the kind worn by our grandmothers.

The wearing of a scarf is an art, and had better be omitted altogether unless one learns how to dispose it gracefully, how to carry it. The difficulty is similar to the wearing of a shawl; this person looks like an old woman the moment she places a shawl or scarf on her shoulders; that one looks graceful, captivating. Then who is it, and who is it not, that can wear shawl and scarf? Each must find out for herself, but we should say plump shoulders and a full chest requisite.

The scarf is of lace, of mull, of embroidered crepe, of soft silk, and happy she who has one of the really old—an heirloom. It would be well to consult grandmother and great-aunt, to hunt in attic and long locked up half-cloth trunk, for though the stores are showing beautiful ones of modern make, the old-fashioned ones bear the mark of gentility, and the creamy "old" look so very desirable.

If one is hesitating about what to get for stock and belt this fall, a word in regard to the shaded ribbons may be of help. Two yards of six-inch ribbon for the neck and just enough for the belt to make a narrow crushed band; for the stock, pass the ribbon around twice and tie in a very wide, butterfly-eye bow at the throat. Soft liberty satin is expensive, and the very thin, soft taffeta, which is much cheaper, answers the purpose quite as well.

Ribbons are very much used, and as ribbon, like lace and jewelry, is property, the fashion is a good, economical one. Velvet ribbon appears as trimming in various ways, and usually is very becoming and pretty.

Not much as yet can be said about hats; the most noticeable thing is that they reproduce in winter stuffs the prevailing styles of the summer; also, hats now match the gowns as do gloves and even shoes. This is a rather expensive fashion, but the harmony is very attractive. With a street dress of black and white is worn a large round hat, something on the sailor order, of black and white rough wool;

THE NEW LACE SCARF.

the hat trimmed with self-material and soft folds of black velvet. Vells have not been banished, though the effort was made. They wave about the head and shoulders of almost every well-dressed woman one meets on the streets.

ELLEN OSMONDE.

HIS FIRST.... MATRIMONIAL CASE

(Original.)
"They're still enough and crabbed looking" enough to have been married ten years."

It was the driver of a one horse vehicle who spoke. He was driving a young couple up a long, winding road to a summer hotel. They had spent three weeks on a wedding trip and were on the morrow to be again at the home they had so recently left, a happy bride and groom. When they reached the hotel they alighted in view of guests lounging on the piazza.

"Brother and sister," remarked one. "No. They're young, but they've been long married," said another.

"I put them down as bride and groom who are in the midst of their first quarrel," said an experienced matron. "Unfortunately there was an hour before dinner, and the couple must talk. There was nothing else to do."

"This all comes," said the man, "of your not respecting confidences. Nothing would tempt me to read any letter belonging to you. The note was not addressed to you, but to Miss Torbert."

"Herbert and Torbert look enough alike to be mistaken one for the other. Besides, I care nothing how I came into possession of this information. It is what I have discovered. Three weeks after marriage I learn that my husband loves another woman and only married me because he couldn't help himself."

"Emmy, I'll admit it looks black, but give me time. I may be able to clear the thing away."

"Clear it away? Isn't it down in black and white in your own hand-writing?"

"It is all a matter of faith. If I had discovered such a letter written by you and you told me there was an explanation I would believe you."

"Then why is the explanation not forthcoming?"

"It would be useless till I have the wherewithal to prove it."

"I see; the story might not fit the proof."

"Emmy, you are charging me with what is dishonorable."

"Nothing said to a woman is considered dishonorable by some men."

"This is unbearable. I will go downstairs till dinner. I will meet you on the piazza."

He was passing through the office when he was handed some letters. One was from his bosom friend, his chum of years, his confidant. He had no sooner read it than he started to go back to his wife, but reconsidered the matter.

"How I ever came," he muttered, "to leave that letter undestroyed is a mystery. I suppose my not doing so came about in the hurry of preparation."

When his wife came down he led her to a table set for two by a window overlooking a lawn and garden. In the center of which flashed a fountain.

"Sweetheart," he said while they spooned their soup, "the proof of my innocence has unexpectedly come to me."

She looked up at him eagerly. "But," he continued, "the case is a complicated one, and it behooves me to be very careful about bringing the evidence. Of course as a lawyer I know the dangers of calling a witness without first establishing his character for truth and veracity."

"Don't keep me waiting."

"First you must grant that the letter having been found by you only this morning, there would be no time for me to write home and have a letter concocted to cover the case."

"Certainly not. Go on."

"Second, I must give you the name of my principal and only witness and ask you if you would believe him."

"Of course I would. Who is he?"

"Lawrence Ward."

"He'd do anything for you."

"You are right. He'd lie for me if necessary, but in this case there's been no time, as you have admitted, for collusion."

"For heaven's sake stop all this talk and tell me what you're coming to."

"One moment. It is my custom when I have a case I am sure to win to have a bottle of champagne on ice for a celebration. Walter, bring me a wine card."

It was not till the young husband saw the wine deposited beside him that he threw a letter across the table to his wife. She seized it and devoured it greedily, while the husband ordered the wine to be opened. The letter read:

In obedience to your letter stating that you had decided not to send the message you had written Marian J., but wished me to tell her its contents, I went to her and had an hour's conversation with her. Women are much smarter than men about some things, and the lady saw through your device from the first. The hint I threw out that you preferred her to the girl you were to marry she caught, inasmuch as she was rich and your wife poor. However, your fear of a "woman scorned" is groundless, for you have been for some time supplanted without knowing it. She laughingly asked me to announce her engagement and beg of you to waste no more time trying to smooth over what needs no smoothing.

However, I consider your attempt to mollify her prudent if not wise, for she is a dangerous woman and would have made it hot for you if she had wanted you for herself.

In conclusion, she told me to say to you that she knew a year ago that your heart was given to the woman you have married.

When the wife looked up at her husband there was relief in her eyes. Their hands met under the table and the man, raising his glass, proposed as a toast, "My first matrimonial case."

BRITISH LEGATION IS ROBBED

Recent Episode at Peking Proves of Minor Importance.

Peking, Oct. 19.—The recent episode at the British legation in Paris, which has been described as an attempt to blow up the legation magazine during a military ball, was in reality the robbery of certain ordnance stores, supposedly by Chinese servants, who carried the gun fittings and other portable articles away with them, but left the detonating apparatus outside the magazine, apparently finding difficulty in carrying it. All the stolen property has been recovered from junkshops, where it was sold by the thieves.

SPOILS PLOT TO FREE FELONS

Fireman Gives Warning in Time to Frustrate Delivery.

Milwaukee, Oct. 19.—What might have been a wholesale jail delivery was frustrated through the sharpness of a fireman named Poelter, whose house is located next to the county jail. Some night ago he noticed strangers near the jail window which opens on an area between the two buildings. Sunday night he saw them again, and informed Sheriff Tegtmeyer. The alarm was given, and several deputies armed themselves with shot-guns and drove the prisoners into their cells. An examination was made, and the steel bars of the windows near where Poelter saw the strangers were found to be sawed through and everything made ready for an escape. A careful search of the prisoners and their cells failed to reveal any tools with which the work could have been done, which leads to the belief that outsiders are implicated.

It is charged that the victims number scores and extend to all parts of this county. Complaint against Morris was made by W. H. Thompson, agent for the United States Casualty Company. Morris, it is charged, has written up policies, insuring against accident, sickness and death. The companies he represented had no provisions for death benefits in the policies.

DEFEAT FOR SMOOT IN UTAH

Mormon Senator Beaten by Gentiles in Salt Lake Primaries.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 19.—The Mormon church has received the most stinging political defeat in its history. In the hardest-fought primary known here, in which the Mormon church championed the candidacy of W. B. James for mayor, the gentile candidate, Frank Knox, won hands down, and a gentile ticket was nominated along with Knox. The fight was really between Senator Reed Smoot, the Mormon apostle, who is now under charges before the United States Senate, and Senator Thomas Kearns. Smoot, backed by the Mormon church, attempted to nominate a straight Mormon ticket, but he failed.

CHINESE TREATY.

The recent completion of a new treaty of commerce between the United States and China lends interest to some figures presented by the Department of Commerce and Labor, through its Bureau of Statistics, regarding trade of the United States with that country. These figures show a very rapid growth in the exports from the United States to China, and also a rapid growth in the percentage which merchandise from the United States formed of the goods imported into that country.

In 1875 merchandise imported into China from the United States amounted to 1,016,000 Halkwan taels. In value, out of a total importation of 69,995,000 Halkwan taels. In 1895 the value of imports from the United States was 3,315,000 Halkwan taels out of a total importation of 89,497,000 Halkwan taels. In 1895 merchandise from the United States amounted to 5,093,000 Halkwan taels, out of a total importation of 179,947,000 Halkwan taels in value. In 1900 the merchandise from the United States to China amounted to 16,724,000 Halkwan taels, out of a total of 211,070,000 Halkwan taels in value, and in 1902, 30,138,713 Halkwan taels in value from the United States was less than 2 per cent of the total imports into China and in 1902 practically 10 per cent of the total imports. The above figures are from the official reports of the Chinese government.

Taking our own figures of commerce with China, the growth in exports to that country has been from $1,101,483 in 1889 to $2,946,209 in 1890 $12,539,167 in 1900, and $18,603,369 in 1903. The figures prior to 1889 can not be given in satisfactory form because prior to that time gold and silver were included in the statement of exports to China, and as the shipments of silver to China were frequently large, the figures if quoted would be misleading, so far as relates to commerce in merchandise.

In 1902 the United States occupied fourth place in the list of countries from which China drew its imports. The total from the United States in that year was, as already indicated, 30,138,713 Halkwan taels; from Great Britain, 57,624,610 Halkwan taels; India, 33,037,439 Halkwan taels; and from Japan 35,342,283 Halkwan taels.

From Hongkong the imports were much larger than from any of the countries named, the total being 133,524,169 Halkwan taels but a footnote attached to the statement of the Chinese government on this subject says that "The imports from Hongkong come originally from Great Britain, America, Australia, India, Straits Settlements, and the coast ports of China." In 1870 the United States was practically at the bottom of the list from which China drew its imports, the total from the United States in that year being but 374,000 Halkwan taels, while the United Kingdom headed the list with 24,181,000 Halkwan taels, Hongkong, India, Japan, Straits Settlements, the continent of Europe, and of the remaining imports of that year.

Great Britain, India, Japan and the United States are the chief rivals in the import trade of China. The imports from Great Britain increased from 28,570,000 Halkwan taels in 1892 to 57,624,610 Halkwan taels in 1902. From India the increase was from 13,861,000 Halkwan taels in 1892 to 33,037,439 Halkwan taels in 1902. From Japan the increase was from 6,702,000 Halkwan taels in 1892 to 35,342,283 Halkwan taels in 1902. From the United States the increase was from 3,315,000 Halkwan taels in 1892 to 30,138,713 Halkwan taels in 1902. The imports from Germany are not separately shown by the report of the Chinese government, it being included with other figures under the general head of "Continent of Europe," except Russia," from which the total imports amounted to 18,481,678 Halkwan taels in 1902.

It is proper to add that the average value of the Halkwan tael in 1902 is given by the Chinese government at 63 cents, American gold.

PROTECT THE PRESIDENT.

The occurrence since Colonel Roosevelt became president of two demonstrations by mentally unbalanced persons looking like attempts on his life has revived the question, which the last congress left unanswered, of the better legal protection of men in high official station. In the president's first message this subject was treated at length and with great clearness and vigor of utterance. He called attention to the fact that three of the last seven elected presidents had been murdered while in office and recommended the suppression of anarchistic literature; the giving to the federal courts of jurisdiction with proper penalty, over murderous attempts on the life of the president or any cabinet officer in the line of succession, and, finally, the adoption by civilized powers of joint efforts for the extirpation of the anarchistic propaganda. A bill embodying these recommendations was introduced but failed to pass.

So far as the present executive is concerned, fear does not enter as a factor into the problem. If he could have his way, he could do without even the small guard which the secret service now maintains about him. But the matter is above personal inclination. It concerns the state, and the state owes to itself a proper safeguarding of its executive head. There are probably not more than four or five men in each million of our population who would wish or plot for the assassination of an American executive, whether his politics or the circumstances of his administration; but the fate of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley should admonish us to beware of the millionth crank. The approaching congress will be grossly derelict in a matter of the highest moment if it shall not take up this subject where the last congress left off and work it out to the best of its ability.

In this connection, there is a reform which the president himself can introduce forthwith, without consent from congress, which will tend to increase both safety and comfort and which the best opinion of the time would most heartily approve and sustain. That is to limit personal calling upon invitation and appointment or by virtue of official position on matters pertaining to the public business. This thing of letting Tom, Dick and Harry consume the president's time, strength and patience, mostly over trivial things which could be just as well be attended to in ordinary routine through executive departments, represents a perversion of true democracy and a culpable waste of energy.

Now at last brother Bryan has decided that Free silver is as dead as the democratic donkey. He has also decided to depart from his ways of foolishness and stop supporting the doctrine that brought defeat to his party. Maybe his friend Bob will some day wake up to the same conclusions regarding his pet measures.

Between the greed of Russia, intrigue at home and all the other powers waiting for a chance. Poor China may well look to the Japs for protection.

Free trade might have done once upon a time when England controlled our shores but now protection is almost a necessity to continue the building up of our industries.

Roosevelt is certainly appreciated by Bryan and few more of them and Wall street has discovered that even if he does grin he can not be fooled with.

Think of staid old England even talking protection from those awful American industries that are taking money.

It may be a sad thing for Bryan to know but Grover really attracts more attention just now than he does.

It is said that Grover refused to say whether he wanted to be president again or go fishing on his recent visit to Chicago.

Even La Follette could not speak at the Minnesota-Wisconsin game and command attention.

New York seems to have thus far survived Dowd and his invasion of the Restoration Host.

It has not been free trade that has developed the south but good old protection.

King football is now reigning supreme in all parts of the land of the free.

Wisconsin took poor Beloit into camp Saturday and Beloit said they expected it.

PRESS COMMENT.

New York Sun: The reports from Washington indicate that scorchers of all varieties in that city have decided to obey the highway speed law since the adoption of the bicycle squad of stop watches or speedometers. It is claimed that these little instruments, which have been thoroughly tested by the Washington police authorities, register to within a fraction of a second the time required by a vehicle to cover a given distance. Knowing this the scorchers have reformed.

Chicago News: Senator Morgan of Ohio will be able to tell better just how his colonial preferential tariff scheme is working after the United States shall have done a little in the way of Yankee legislation to meet the emergency.

Cincinnati Times Star: A New York banker says the slump of stock is the result of a fever which must run its course. It also gave a good many persons chills and cold feet.

Chicago News: Senator Morgan of Alabama says he knows of 500 Democrats any one of whom would make a better president than Roosevelt, but as he is a modest man he declines to designate more than 499 of them by name.

Washington Times: A Newport society leader says that it is dangerous to be too democratic, as people are not equal anyway. This is a relief. Some sensible Americans had feared that their children would be compelled to mingle in Newport society.

Chicago Record Herald: A report is out to the effect that a lot of titled women are coming to this country from Europe in search of rich husbands. Let them be careful about accepting candy from Massachusetts school ma'ams.

Kenosha News: It would hardly do to accuse a minister of working an advertising dodge but if that Racine minister who stopped a young opera singer's solo in his church had been an advertising agent he could not have thought of a better scheme to get her name before the public.

La Crosse Chronicle: The Rev. George Murray Colville of the First Presbyterian church of Racine may not have intended it that way when he interrupted Miss Susie Roberts and forbade her to continue her solo "Ave Maria" in his church, Sunday but he gave Miss Roberts one of the most valuable pieces of advertising she could have. She starts this week on a concert tour and instead of being indignant at the Rev. Colville, she should feel extremely grateful. His scruples have given her a notoriety she could have obtained in no other way and it will be a valuable asset to her career.

Valentine's School of Telegraphy, Janesville, Wis. Teaches its students a trade, and then starts them at work. Railroads give our graduates immediate employment and furnish free passes to destinations. We have more orders for operators than we can fill, and give students choice of different railroads in many states. Call at our office, and we will show you letters from railroad superintendents in all parts of the country ordering men and sending passes for them to travel on. There are many young men in Janesville and vicinity who would be greatly benefited by a course in this school, because they would be quickly taught a trade, and then put to work. Nine tenths of the great railroad officials began as telegraph operators, many of them in this school, and there is no other business which offers such opportunities for advancement, and can be so quickly learned, the average time required in our school being less than four months. A good trade is the best possession a young man can have. The superintendent of this division of the Northwestern Railroad was formerly a student in this school, and hundreds of other officials began with us. Write for our catalogue which tells all about it, or come and see us in the Jackson Building.

DUPLICATE PAY CHECK OF ROAD

CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL SYSTEM THE LOSER.

ONE CHECK HAS BEEN FOUND

Totals May in the End Amount to Many Thousands of Dollars.

Special detectives of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road have been assigned to investigate what may prove to be one of the most extensive series of forgeries that company, and in fact any road in the country, has ever experienced.

Whether the amount involved is many thousands of dollars, or the single instance that has come to light is the sole example of the work of the forgers, is not known. Indications, however, point to the fact that the forgeries may prove far-reaching. This belief is supported by the elaborate preparations made for the work by the gang, which it is deemed certain would not have been made had only a few dollars been the object of the forgery.

The forgery consists of a duplication, according to statements of officials of the road to whom the case has been referred, of the pay checks of the company.

All employees of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system are paid in checks. These are an engraved form, and are twice signed in the auditor's office. The checks are then distributed monthly along the entire length of the extensive system of the Milwaukee & St. Paul company.

Signed "Jack Dillon" a few days ago, according to the story told Col. John A. Hinsey, who is at the head of the detective service of the company, a check was received at the paymaster's office in this city that had been cashed at an interior point. The check was made payable to "Jack Dillon," and was for $68. It was on a form similar to that used by the company, being an exact duplicate of the railway check, save that it was printed instead of engraved. It bore what purported to be the signatures of the two officials of the auditing department that are necessary to make the check valid, and that of the assistant paymaster.

Detectives at Work
The check bore the endorsement of the supposed "Jack Dillon," and those of others through whose hands it had passed. Special detectives of the company are now engaged in an effort to trace it back to the person who originally received it. It is expected that in this manner the detectives will be able to discover the original holder of the spurious check, if not the men who made it.

Work of an Expert
While the paper is not like that used by the railway company—the railway checks being printed on paper especially made for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul company—it is a very good reproduction in color if not in texture. The printing itself is very near perfect and the signatures are executed in a manner that gives indication that the work is that of an expert penman—one who is capable of forging any name.

Officials of the Milwaukee road are anxiously awaiting reports from points where checks are likely to be cashed to ascertain the extent of the forgeries. These checks are issued in thousands each month, they are cashed at banks, in stores and at saloons, or at any place where the recipient may chance to trade; and frequently they are slow in returning to the general offices. Until some time has elapsed the extent of the operations of the forgers will not be known.

AUTUMN PARTY ON FRIDAY EVENING

Mr. and Mrs. E. Hall the Hosts at a Novel Entertainment at Their Home.

Last Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. E. Hall and their daughter, Jennie, entertained a few friends at their home on South River street. When the guests assembled at six o'clock, they were ushered into rooms that were so heavily decorated with autumn foliage that a little stretch of imagination called back the picnic in the woods of earlier days.

The dining room resembled a bower in the forest, and after the guests were seated at the table, a flash light picture was taken to send across the water to Mrs. Hubbard, as a pleasant reminder of old time friends at home.

After supper Miss Willey, the elocutionist, recited for the company, and the old hymn "America" was sung with old fashioned fervor.

Mr. Hall, who is in his eighty-sixth year, has been actively engaged in merchandising for more than 60 years, and his wife has been his constant business associate. He is still active, and his account of commercial life in Chicago in the early forties, is like a romance. He said to the little company of friends, "I am ten years younger for the visit."

Among the guests were Rev. and Mrs. Henderson, Rev. and Mrs. Thibault, Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Loomis, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lowell and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bliss.

Every Man a King: At the Men's meeting Sunday afternoon, a service of unusual interest was held. Rev. W. W. Warner, of the First M. E. church, spoke and the text of his talk was "Every Man a King." There was a good crowd at the Y. M. C. A. and special music made the occasion more attractive.

Schumann Club to Meet: This evening the active members of the Schumann club will meet with Mrs. J. F. Sweeney at eight o'clock. All members are asked to be present.

CITY WAS VERY BADLY BEHAVED

TEN OFFENDERS APPEARED IN COURT THIS MORNING.

CANNIBAL GAGEN TO WAUPUN

Man Who Hit Officer Fanning Gets Eighteen Months—Row in Franklin House.

Landlord Phillips of the City Hall hotel had every room in his hostelry engaged over Sunday. It was necessary to lodge two "guests" in each apartment, so great was the demand for the hotel. The hotel was badly behaved on his hospitality. Janesville behaved himself badly, commencing Saturday night.

Ten Before the Court
The liveliest session for many weeks occurred in municipal court this morning when ten malefactors were brought before Judge Fifield. Seven of these pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness; two to assault and battery, and one to mayhem.

Row in Franklin House
There was a row in the Franklin House yesterday afternoon. Two men drove in from Beloit and left a horse blanket in the barn. They were somewhat under the influence of liquor.

While they were inside the hotel a boy employed there, supposing the blanket belonged to the proprietor, took it and drove away with it. The men upon discovering it missing refused to listen to argument or explanation and committed an assault on the person of Landlord Hilton. He complained against them and this morning John Schultz and Charles pleaded guilty. The former was fined $3 and $3 costs and the latter $4 and $3 costs.

"Cannibal" Gets 18 Months
The "cannibal" Martin Gagen, who hit Officer Fanning as he was locking him in his cell a few nights ago pleaded guilty and was given eighteen months in the state prison at Waupun. He gave drunkenness at his only excuse for his bestial act.

The Seven Drunkards
Those fined for drunkenness were as follows: Hugh Smith, $2 and costs; Charles Johnson of Beloit, $3; Fred Vetsoy, $3 and costs; Gus Verch, $2 and costs; Oscar Halsey, $2 and costs; Thomas Mackin, five days in jail and a fine of $8 or fifteen additional days. Halsey also was given six days in jail in default of payment of his fine.

Two Farmers Settle
Henry Ullrich and Horatio W. Smith, the two farmers who participated in a lively fray on Milwaukee street a fortnight ago, settled their differences out of court and upon payment of costs the cases were dismissed.

Becker-Winter.
Word has been received here that Mrs. Jennie W. Becker, a former Janesville girl and Mr. Richard Winter of Granite Falls, Minnesota, were married on October 15th.

Mrs. Becker lived here for many years and is well known to Janesville people.

Brought Home Sunday: H. Lightfoot, who has been employed on a farm five miles out on the river road, was brought to his home in this city Sunday morning in the Russell ambulance. He is dangerously ill with consumption and was brought here so that better care could be taken of him.

The U-Pin-It Factory Will Soon Be Running Complete in All Particulars.

That the U-Pin-It Hook and Eye factory is more than newspaper talk would be realized by anyone who visits the Woodruff factory and watches the expert machinist C. R. Kleiner, of Waterbury, Conn., putting the hook and eye machines in to running order. There are three machines already here and two more are expected during the week from the Waterbury factory. Then as soon as the whole building can be cleared for occupation the twenty-seven novelty machines of the company now in Chicago will be shipped up and put into operation.

Hard At It.
Mr. Mills, the president of the company said this morning that he hoped within a week to have the three machines running full speed and within two weeks to have the rest of the floor space of the factory at their disposal. At present Mr. Humrill has a large store of tobacco cases there but it is expected that an arrangement will be made so that this will be moved shortly.

Wood Mfg. Co.
Sometime ago the U-Pin-It company purchased the machines and good will of the E. W. Wood Mfg. company of Chicago. This company was one of the best known novelty producing companies in the west.

The entire equipment of the concern will be moved here at once and Mr. Mills hopes to have the whole factory running within thirty days.

Well Advertised.
Mr. Mills also proposes to have the U-Pin-It well advertised and has asked for figures from a local printing company for a 100,000 cards and an equal number of labels. Advertisements will also be placed in all the leading magazines of the country and all the big wholesale houses will be furnished with an ample supply for their retail trade.

Vice President Here.
Mr. John Willey, vice president of the company, is also in the city meeting the business men and is more than pleased with the prospects. He says that in the past he has had no difficulty in selling the articles and that with increased factory facilities he will be able to keep even with the demand he hopes. He is a New York man and this is his first visit to Janesville. He says that the rolling hills make it much more pleasant than in flat Chicago.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "Dr. Nikola," "The Beautiful White Devil," "Pharos," "The Egyptian," Etc.

(Copyrighted, 1930, by Guy Boothby & Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

PART I.—Three rogues, Hayle, Kitwater and Codd, meet at Singapore. Latter two have learned of existence of hidden treasure at Sengkor-Wat—old Burmese ruler's Chinese border. Hayle, only half-believer, agrees to join in search.

PART II.—Reaching Sengkor-Wat, the men make their way through the ancient streets and toward the once splendid palace. Toward dusk after a most tedious search they come upon secret entrance to underground vaults, in which are discovered great quantities of bar gold and rubies and sapphires. Hayle, who has both hands with gems and the men make their way outside again. On reaching camp they find their two Burmese servants slain and horribly mutilated. Chinese soldiers surround the night Hayle secures treasure and steals away into the jungle.

PART III.—Utterly exhausted and unconscious, Hayle is found by English officers near frontier station of Nampoun. As soon as able he leaves for Hangoon and thence to England.

PART IV.—Two months later another officer at Nampoun, while out on a hunt comes across Kitwater and Codd. Kitwater explains that they were treasure hunters who had pulled out Codd's tongue. After recovering somewhat from effects of exposure and tortures they set out in search of Hayle.

CHAPTER I.—George Fairfax relates how he became a detective in Australia and finally came to open up an office in London.

CHAPTER II.—Kitwater and Codd try to secure Fairfax's services. They represent themselves as missionaries returned from China where a rich native patron turned over to them a large sum of money which was stolen by a guest (Hayle) at the mission. Fairfax almost concludes not to take case.

CHAPTER III.—Miss Kitwater calls on Fairfax in behalf of her uncle and succeeds in persuading him to take up the work. Later in the day a stranger, who calls himself Edward Hayle, of the Santa Cruz Mining company, seeks to shadow Fairfax to go to America to shadow mine manager who is suspected of embezzlement. Detective replies he now has case on which will engage him for some time. Fairfax at a leading jeweler's learns that an unusually large amount of stones have been received, and gets description of man of whom they were bought.

CHAPTER IV.—One evening Fairfax finds himself followed by two ruffians but manages to elude them. Suspecting they will repeat performance he goes forth the next night, but with one of his most powerful men but little result. Finding that he is indeed followed, Fairfax turns into a dark street and turns about and confronts ruffians who confess they have been hired to brain him. Fairfax agrees to meet them at their principal. Detective goes in their place to keep appointment. He conceals himself and is much surprised to see Mr. Hayle appear.

CHAPTER V.—The managing director of the Santa Cruz Mining company Fairfax learns there is no Hayle in their employ. The director, however, remembers a former clerk who answers to the description given by the detective; his name was Gideon Hayle. That same day by accident Fairfax almost comes upon Hayle, but the latter runs into a cab. Fairfax follows in close pursuit. After a long chase the forward cab comes to a stop, but it is empty.

CHAPTER VI.—After many persistent inquiries Fairfax locates Hayle in Foxworth hotel, but misses finding him in by only a few minutes. Subordinate detectives are located at the various stations, and one of them, Dickson, manages to trace Hayle to Paris.

CHAPTER VII.—Fairfax takes advantage of necessary delay to spend Sunday at the Kitwater home, and becomes very much impressed with the charms of Miss Kitwater. He learns that it is she upon whom Kitwater is drawing for funds for the pursuit of Hayle.

The position was decidedly an awkward one. It was some proof of the girl's sterling qualities that she should be prepared to make such a sacrifice for the sake of a man whom it was certainly impossible to love, and for that reason even to respect. I looked at her with an admiration in my face that I did not attempt to conceal. I said nothing by way of praise, however. It would have been an insult to her to have even hinted at such a thing.

"Pardon me," I said at last, "but there is one thing that must be taken into consideration. Some day, Miss Kitwater, you may marry, and in that case your husband might not care about the arrangement you have made. Such things have happened before now."

She blushed a rosy red and hesitated before she replied.

"I do not consider it very likely that I shall ever marry," she answered. "And even if I did I should certainly not marry a man who would object to my doing what I consider to be my duty. And now that we have discussed all this, Mr. Fairfax, what do you think we had better do? I understood you to say to my uncle that you intend leaving for Paris to-morrow morning, in order to continue your search for the man Hayle. Supposing you find him, what will you do then?"

"In such a case," I said, slowly, looking at her all the time, "I should endeavor to get your uncle's and Codd's share of the treasure from him. If I am successful, then I shall let him go where he pleases."

"And supposing you are unsuccessful in obtaining the money or the gems?"

"Then I must endeavor to think of some other way," I replied, "but somehow I do not think I shall be unsuccessful."

"Nor do I," she answered, looking me full and fair in the face. "I fancy you know that I believe in you most implicitly, Mr. Fairfax."

"In that case, do you mind shaking hands upon it?" I said.

"I will do so with much pleasure," she answered. "You cannot imagine what a weight you have lifted off my mind. I have been so depressed about it lately that I have scarcely known what to do. I have him awake at night, turning it over and over in my mind, and trying to convince myself as to what was best to be done. Then my uncle told me you were coming down here, and I resolved to put the case before you as I have done and to ask your opinion."

She gave me her little hand, and I took it and held it in my own. Then I released it and we strode back along the garden-path together without another word. The afternoon was well advanced by this time, and when we reached the summer-house, where Codd was still reading, we found that a little wicker tea-table had been brought out from the house and that chairs had been placed for us round it. To my thinking there is nothing that becomes a pretty woman more than the mere commonplace act of pouring out tea. It was certainly so in this case. When I looked at the white cloth upon the table, the heavy brass tray, and the silver jugs and teapot, and thought of my own cracker earthenware vessel, then reposing in a cupboard in my office, and in which I brewed my cup of tea every afternoon, I smiled to myself. I felt that I should never use it again without recalling this meal. After that I wondered whether it would ever be my good fortune to sit in this garden again, and to sip my Orange Pekoe from the same dainty service. The thought that I might not do so was, strangely enough, an unpleasant one, and I put it from me with all promptness. During the meal, Kitwater scarcely uttered a word. We had exhausted the probabilities of the case long since, and I soon found that he could think or talk of nothing else. At six o'clock I prepared to make my adieu. My train left Bishopstowe for London at the half-hour, and I should just have time to walk the distance comfortably. To my delight my hostess decided to go to church, and said she would walk with me as far as the lych-gate. She accordingly left us and went into the house to make her toilet. As soon as she had gone Kitwater fumbled his way across to where I was sitting, and having discovered a chair beside me seated himself in it.

"Mr. Fairfax," said he, "I labor under the fear that you cannot understand my position. Can you realize what it is like to feel shut up in the dark, waiting and longing always for only one thing? Could you not let me come to Paris with you to-morrow?"

"Impossible," I said. "It is out of the question. It could not be thought of for a moment!"

"But why not? I can see no difficulty in it!"

"If for no other reason because it would destroy any chance of my

AT THAT MOMENT MISS KITWATER MADE HER REAPPEARANCE IN THE GARDEN.

even getting on the scent. I should be hampered at every turn."

He heaved a heavy sigh. "Blind! blind!" he said with despair in his voice. "But I know that I shall meet him some day, and when I do—"

His ferocity was the more terrible by reason of his affliction.

"Only wait, Mr. Kitwater," I replied. "Wait, and if I can help you, you shall have your treasure back again. Will you then be satisfied?"

"Yes, I'll be satisfied," he answered, but with what struck me as almost reluctance. "Yes, when I have my treasure back again I'll be satisfied, and so will Codd. In the meantime I'll wait here in the dark, the dark in which the days and nights are the same. Yes, I'll wait and wait and wait."

At that moment Miss Kitwater made her reappearance in the garden, and I rose to bid my clients farewell.

"Good-by, Mr. Kitwater," I said. "I'll write immediately I reach Paris, and let you know how I am getting on."

"You are very kind," Kitwater answered, and Codd nodded his head.

My hostess and I then set off down the drive to the high-road which we followed towards the village. It was a perfect evening, and the sun was setting in the west in a mass of crimson and gold. At first we talked of various commonplace subjects, but it was not very long before we came back, as I knew we should do, to the one absorbing topic.

"There is another thing I want to set right with you, Miss Kitwater," I said, as we paused upon the bridge to which I have elsewhere referred. "It is only a small matter, somehow, however, I feel that I must settle it, before I can proceed further in the affair with any satisfaction to myself."

She looked at me in surprise.

"What is it?" she asked. "I thought we had settled everything."

"So far as I can see that is the only matter that remains," I answered. "Yet it is sufficiently important to warrant my speaking to you about it. What I want to know is, whom I am serving?"

"I don't think I understand," she said, drawing lines with her umbrella upon the stone coping of the bridge as she spoke.

"And yet my meaning is clear," I returned. "What I want to be certain of is, whether I am serving you or your uncle?"

"I don't think you are serving either of us," she answered. "You are helping us to right a great wrong."

"Forgive me, but that is merely trifling with words. I am going to be candid once more. You are paying the money, I believe?"

In some confusion she informed me that this certainly was the case.

"Very well, then, I am certainly your servant," I said. "It is your interests I shall have to study."

"I can trust them implicitly to you, I am sure, Mr. Fairfax," she replied. "And now here we are at the church. If you walk quickly you will be just in time to catch your train. Let me thank you again for coming down to-day."

"It has been a great pleasure to me," I replied. "Perhaps when I return from Paris you will permit me to come down again to report progress?"

"We shall be very pleased to see you," she answered. "Now good-by, and a pleasant journey to you!"

We shook hands and parted. As I passed along the road I watched her making her way along the avenue towards the church. There was need for me to shake my head.

"George Fairfax," said I, "it would require very little of that young lady's society to enable you to make a fool of yourself."

CHAPTER VIII.

Unlike so many of my countrymen I am prepared to state that I detect the French capital. I always make my visits to it as brief as possible, then, my business completed, off I fly again, seeming to breathe more freely when I am outside its boundaries. I don't know why this should be so, for I have always been treated with the utmost courtesy and consideration by its inhabitants, particularly by those members of the French detective force with whom I have been brought in contact.

On this visit I crossed with one of the cleverest Parisian detectives, a man with whom I have had many dealings. He was most anxious to ascertain the reason of my visit to his country. My assurance that I was not in search of any one of his own criminals seemed to afford him no sort of satisfaction. He probably regarded it as an attempt to put him off the scent, and I fancy he resented it. We reached Paris at seven o'clock, whereupon I invited him to dine with me at eight o'clock, at a restaurant we had both patronized on many previous occasions. He accepted my invitation, and promised to meet me at the time and place I named. On the platform awaiting our arrival was my man Dickson, to whom I had telegraphed, ordering him to meet me.

"Well, Dickson," I said, when I had bade the detective an revoir, "what about our man?"

"I've had him under my eye, sir," he answered. "I know exactly what he's been doing, and where he's staying."

"That's good news, indeed," I replied. "Have you discovered anything else about him?"

"Yes, sir," he returned. "I find that he's struck up a sudden acquaintance with a lady named Mme. Beaumais, and that they are to dine together at the Cafe des Ambassadeurs to-night. They have been in and out of half the jeweler's shops in the Rue de la Paix to-day, and he's spending a mint of money on her."

"They are dining at the Cafe des Ambassadeurs to-night, did you say? At what time?"

"I cannot tell you that, sir," Dickson replied. "I only know that they are to dine there together to-night."

"And pray how did you find that out?"

"I made inquiries as to who she was, and where she lived, and then pumped her maid," he answered.

"You did not do anything that would excite his suspicions, I hope?" I put in. "You ought to know by this time what women are."

"Oh, no, sir, you needn't be afraid," he said. "I was too careful for that. The maid and I are on very friendly terms. She believes me to be a Russian, and I've not denied it."

"It would be safest not to do so," I replied. "If she discovers that you are an Englishman, she might chance to mention the fact to her mistress. She would doubtless let it fall in conversation with him, and then all our trouble would be useless. You speak Russian, do you not?"

"Only pretty well, sir," he answered. "I should be soon bowled out if I came in contact with a real one."

"Well, I think I will be somewhere near the Cafe des Ambassadeurs to-night just to make sure of my man. After that I'll tell you what to do next."

"Very good, sir," he returned. "I suppose you will be staying at the same place?"

"Yes, the same place," I replied. "If you have anything to communicate, you can either call, or send word to me there."

I thereupon departed for the quiet house at which I usually take up my abode when in Paris. The big hotels are places I steer clear of, for the simple reason that I often have business in connection with them, and it does not pay me to become too well known. At this little house I can go out and come in just as I please, have my meals at any time of the day or night, and am as well cared for as at my own abode in London. On this occasion the old lady of the house greeted me with flattering enthusiasm. She had received my telegram, she said, and my usual room awaited me. I accordingly ascended to it in order to dress myself for the dinner of the evening, and as I did so thought of the pretty bedroom I had seen on the previous day, which naturally led me to think of the owner of the house, at that moment my employer. In my mind's eye I could see her just as she had stood on that old stone bridge at Bishopstowe, with the sunset behind her.

Veteran A. F. It was seldom that my back did not ache and I have been completely laid up for three or four days at a stretch. When stooping or lifting twinges penetrated the kidneys, the secretions from those organs were too frequent and accompanied by pain. I used all kinds of remedies but none gave permanent relief. Obtaining Sloan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Co., I took them and after the first three or four doses a noticeable change was brought about. We Will Buy

A 50c. Bottle of Liquezone and Give it to You to Try.

Liquezone—liquid oxygen—is the only product that can kill germs in the body without killing you. No man knows any other way to destroy the cause of any germ disease.

It is new to America, and millions who need it don't know of it. For that reason we make this remarkable offer. We will buy the first bottle and give it to you if you need it. We will do it willingly, gladly, to convince you at once and forever that Liquezone does kill germs.

We Paid $100,000

for the rights to Liquezone for the United States. We tested this product for years in the most difficult germ diseases; then we bought these rights for the highest price ever paid for a scientific discovery.

We paid that price because Liquezone does what all the skill in the world cannot do without it. Any drug that kills germs is a poison to you and it cannot be taken internally. The best physicians, the world over, employ Liquezone alone for germ troubles; and any physician who doesn't is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Just Oxygen.

Liquezone is simply liquid oxygen—no drugs, no alcohol in it. It is the discovery of Pauli, the great German chemist, who spent 20 years on it. His object was to get such an excess of oxygen in staple form into the blood that no germ could live in any membrane or tissue.

Liquezone does that. The results are so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a germ that it cannot kill. Yet oxygen is Nature's greatest tonic—the very source of your vitality. Its effects are exhilarating, purifying, vitalizing. But germs are vegetables; and this excess of oxygen—the very life of an animal—is deadly to vegetable matter.

We spend 14 days in making each bottle of Liquezone, and the result is liquid oxygen—the best thing in the world for you, yet certain destruction to disease germs, wherever the Liquezone-laden blood goes.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.

TWO MEN ARE THOUGHT DROWNEDHunters From Koshkonong Report
High Waves at Lake Yes terday.

Hunters returning from Lake Koshkonong this morning and late last night report that two men whose names are not known are thought to have lost their lives while hunting there yesterday. The wind was very strong and the waves rolled very high and it is thought that the two unfortunate hunters were capsized while attempting to cross the lake in the face of the storm. The unknown men hired a small boat suitable for one man at St. Ignace's and started out for ducks. They had been warned that the boat was suitable for but one, but insisted in both getting on board. They seemed to know nothing of boats whatever. At a late hour, last night they had not returned and it is feared they met a watery fate although it is possible they arrived on shore safely and left the boat where they landed.

A number of the committees were appointed including a grievance committee, which may make startling disclosures. Other regular business of the association was transacted.

HARRY DANIEL'S
MINOR
OBSERVATIONS

Peary's Coming Search for the North Pole.

As I stood there with 11 undershirts on and icicles in my mustache and beheld for the first time in my life the north pole, which I couldn't see.

"I have the honor," it will read, "of reporting that on the 27th victory roosted on my banner. It was a cold day. Old settlers in that part of the country say they never saw it so cold before. All the way up it was hardship and mutiny. I shed three toes and a cook, but I am quite happy. I will now tell you of my experiences: On the 2d inst. we reached the flourishing town of Spitzboon. In Spitzboon we are in days and nights are six months long. Are your honorable minds in a condition so that they can readily grasp my meaning? Ponder on it, I say. A day and a night each six months long. A man in Spitzboon has to get up 181 times in the night to wind the clock, and it is three months between standard time and sun time, so that if you tell a man to meet you on the corner at three o'clock p. m. and you do not have it understood between you which time you are going by, he may hang around there on that corner until some time the following spring before you show up.

"On Sunday they go to church about the first of March, take up the collection on the 15th of April and the preacher hauls off and smashes the pulpit from then on till the Fourth of July. You wind your watch by standard time and it runs down by sun time. If a man buys a hen in Spitzboon he wants to know whether she lays by sun time or standard. A hen that lays by standard time produces 15 dozen eggs a day, while if she lays by sun time she puts an egg in the nest early in June and then just fools around the manger and cackles about it till the latter part of September. A man may serve his allotted time and live to be 70 years old, standard time, or he may potter around and lose all his hair and at last die of senile dementia at the ripe old age of 16, sun time.

"From Spitzboon north we made the journey via dog. The Eskimo dog is a small, white animal that wears his tail in a Gordian knot just above his person. He is propelled by means of a long, slender whip. When the motorman who pilots him desires him to turn to the left, for instance, he hits him a belt on the left side that nearly knocks him off his feet. Then the sagacious little animal turns in that direction. Northward, ever northward, we journeyed. Day after day we silently bounded over the everlasting ice. The silence was oppressive. Occasionally some driver would arise to his full height and whack his dog a blow on the side, and then all would be silent again. But at last we arrived at the north pole.

"No doubt you now expect to hear of a wild chase and reckless scamper across the ice with the pole putting its tail between its legs and dodging us at every turn in order to avoid capture. Such, however, was not the case. There was no scuffle, no excitement. I cannot describe to you how the pole looks. I was there and I saw it with my own eyes and yet I didn't see anything. I cannot picture to you, my honored sirs, the emotions that swept through my breast as I stood there with 14 undershirts on and icicles in my mustache and beheld for the first time in my life the north pole which I couldn't see. There it was before me. Fortunes had been wrecked, lives lost, nations baffled and science humiliated in countless efforts to find it, and yet there it was before my very eyes, and I with eager eyes was beholding it in all its mysterious glory, but didn't see it.

"Perhaps, honored sirs, as you hear these words you may think that my mind, which was pretty badly frostbitten during the trip, hasn't become entirely thawed out yet, but such is not the case. I am uttering nothing but scientific facts. As I stood there, I say, with a horse blanket tied around my ears and gazed at the north pole I thought me of how one explorer after another had journeyed northward, subsisting on everything from shoe polish to haled hay, and suffering untold horrors and privations in order that he might gaze, if for but one brief moment, upon this north pole which I now saw before me, but didn't. As I stood there, I say, with a bed-tick lashed around my waist and my nose frozen so stiff that I was afraid every minute somebody would touch it and it would drop off, I said to myself, 'Science has at last been vindicated, the eye of man has at last seen the north pole, but not so that you can notice it.'

"And then, staggering with emotion and the frost in my feet, I was assisted to my sled, where I hit my dog a belt on the larboard port, and in another moment I was on my way back.

"The trip home was without special incident, scientifically, excepting once, after the provisions had run low, an Eskimo who acted as first skipper to a dog named Zero got into a fight with a Swede over a tallow candle and a cake of soap that both wanted for breakfast. In closing, I only wish to add that the country around the pole is very poor and the crops seemed to be in bad shape. I have the honor to subscribe myself, Yours With an Itching Heel,

ROBERT E. PEARY.

And that is all there will be to it. Just a report. Still I hope it will come true. I hope some day Lieutenant Peary will come back from the north, and, as he diligently scratches first one foot and then the other against the door jamb, triumphantly proclaim the glad tidings of his discovery.

Mr. Hemmens took his trusty rifle with him, expecting to bag a few mountain lions. Now comes the report of an encounter with one of these ferocious beasts resulting in Mr. Hemmens hanging over a 1,100 foot precipice with a "holer" scratching playfully at his eyes and the unhappy victim choosing between shrinking back into oblivion which to him means certain destruction, or offering himself up as a voluntary sacrifice to the b. c. He had arrived at no decision when they had last heard from him.

DISCOVER RELICS OF PREHISTORIC TOWNArticles Taken From Mound Builders'
Village in Indiana Are Declared
Best of Their Class.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 18.—Relics of a prehistoric town inhabited by mound builders have been discovered in Montgomery county, Ind. State Geologist Blatchley has received samples of various articles. He says the collection is superior to any in the world. It comes from the farm of J. H. Allen, which he and Winton Utterback have been years in exploring. In the course of their research, without opening the mound to any considerable extent, they have discovered an ax, fifteen arrowheads, a ceremonial stone and utensils for making bow-strings.

The ax is a big one, much too large and unyielding for use in war. This specimen is almost perfect. The ceremonial stone is the relic that has taken the fancy of the state geologist. It is a smooth piece of stone resembling a double-bladed ax, with two grooves cut in the blades, but an uninitiated observer might take the stone for the petrified vertebra of some monster fish. Mr. Blatchley says he believes this to be the finest kind in the world.

Broken Shoulder Set: A. J. Denning, the carpenter who received serious injury while working on the new Grubb building Saturday from a falling timber, is doing as well as could be expected. His shoulder blade was broken and another bone splintered. It will be some time before he will be able to return to work.

Trust Magnates Here: Several magnates of the United States Steel Co., passed through Janesville on a special train of seven coaches yesterday morning. Only a brief stop for coal and water was made here. The party had been up in the iron country but came where from St. Paul. They were bound for Chicago.

Only One American Vessel. The great port of Hamburg, according to the last annual report received, ships with a registered tonnage aggregating 8,689,000 tons and but one vessel bearing the American flag entered during the year.

Got the Luck. A superstitious Ozark county young man tried recently for luck to kiss the bride before the groom could do it. He is now nursing two black eyes and a broken nose. He got the luck, all right.—Kansas City Journal.

Mexican Trade. Mexico is buying abroad about $75,000,000 worth (gold) a year and selling abroad over $195,000,000 worth.

BRIDGE FALLS WITH A TRAIN

Tender and Baggage Car Drop Into the Potomac River.

Washington, Oct. 18.—A Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train met with a serious accident on the long bridge which spans the Potomac river. The northern half of the bridge gave way and precipitated the tender and a dead baggage car into the water. A girder saved the passenger cars. No one was killed, but Fireman John Woods of Charlotte, N. C., received a severe gash in the face.

Daring Raid on Bank.

St. Andrews, N. B., Oct. 18.—Burglars entered the Bank of Nova Scotia here, demolished the safe with explosives, and escaped with all the funds, estimated at several thousand dollars.

Heat in Electric Light.

It is usually imagined that the incandescent electric light gives out very little heat. As a matter of fact only 6 per cent of its energy goes to make light, while 94 goes into heat.
